TITLE: Contemporary Social Problems in Short Stories, the Social Sciences and the Press
GEN EDS: LA, CI
DESCRIPTION:
We will read works of short fiction from around the globe that address a range of social and political problems. The course addresses these issues from three angles. We will touch on topics that are prominent in the news today such as opiate addiction, arranged marriage, trafficking, bullying, social exclusion, charitable giving, implicit bias, and basic income. First, we read a short story that addresses the social or political issue. Second, we choose a recent and prominent study in the social sciences that addresses the issue. And third, we investigate how the issue is being reported in the press. Our goal will be to explore the different ways in which literature, social science and journalism construct issues of broad social and political relevance, the

PHIL 155H.001 | Introduction to Mathematical Logic

MWF, 11:15 am - 12:05 pm . Instructor(s): John Roberts. Enrollment = 24.

Standard Philosophy 155, Introduction to Mathematical Logic, introduces the student to two systems of formal logic, the propositional calculus and, briefly, the predicate calculus. (The course title is a bit misleading, as neither system involves numbers per se.) The Honors version of the course will cover the two systems more quickly, in only half the semester. The remaining class time will be devoted to the rudiments of more complicated logical systems that have applied uses in philosophy, such as modal logic, epistemic logic and deontic logic. In addition, there will be philosophical discussion of the nature of symbolic logic itself, and a concluding unit on paradoxes.

John T. Roberts received his BS in Physics from the Georgia Institute of Technology and his PhD in philosophy from the University of Pittsburgh. He has been teaching philosophy at Carolina since 1999. His book The Law-Governed Universe was published by Oxford University Press in 2009.

PHIL 185H.001 | Introduction to Aesthetics
MW, 3:35 pm - 4:50 pm. Instructor(s): Thomas Hofweber. Enrollment = 24.
This course focuses on philosophical issues about art. We will discuss a series of large scale issues about art, its purpose, its appreciation, and its limits. Topics and questions to be discussed include: What is art? Does art have a goal or purpose? What makes art worthy of appreciation? How is art properly appreciated or understood? The significance of the author and the historical context. What is the relation between art and beauty? Are there objective standards for art and beauty? Beauty in nature vs. beauty in art. Does it matter whether an artwork is a forgery or copy, and if so why? Is art tied to human biology or an outgrowth of a cultural setting? The aesthetic appreciation of punk rock. Is music distinct from other arts in what it is supposed to?

Thomas Hofweber specializes in metaphysics, the philosophy of language, and the philosophy of mathematics.He is currently working on a book on idealism, NOTE: WAIT LISTING FOR FALL 2019 HONORS COURSES HAS BEEN SUSPENDED. BEGINNING MONDAY, AUGUST 19, YOU MUST OBTAIN WRITTEN INSTRUCTOR PERMISSION FOR ANY HONORS COURSE YOU WISH TO JOIN. Some seats reserved for first-years and sophomores (with less than 60 credit hours earned) until April 16, 2019. Some seats reserved for philosophy majors and minors until April 16, 2019.

If you believe you are a first-year or sophomore and are getting an error message when trying to register, check your ConnectCarolina Student Center to see if you are being projected as a junior/senior for next term (due to 60+ credit hours earned - if you have 60+ credit hours earned, you will not be able to enroll at this time). If the class is appearing as open, and you are receiving an error message stating you do not meet the "requirements", that means one of the seat reservations is full, and you do not meet the other reservation's requirements. The seat reservations are separate, and do not communicate (so if the reserved seats for first-years and sophomores are full and you are not a declared philosophy major or minor, you will not be able to enroll at this time and vice versa).

PHIL 210H.001 | Ancient Greek Philosophy

MW, 11:15 am - 12:30 pm. Instructor(s): David Reeve. Enrollment = 24.

In this course we will explore the development of ancient Greek thought from its beginnings in the 6th century BCE down to the end of the classical period. The major figures studied will be the Presocratic philosophers, Socrates, Plato, and Aristotle.

Required Text: Cohen, Curd, and Reeve, Readings in Ancient Greek Philosophy, 5th edition. (Earlier editions have different contents and should not be purchased.)

NOTE: WAIT LISTING FOR FALL 2019 HONORS COURSES HAS BEEN SUSPENDED. BEGINNING MONDAY, AUGUST 19, YOU MUST OBTAIN WRITTEN INSTRUCTOR PERMISSION FOR ANY HONORS COURSE YOU WISH TO JOIN. YOU ARE REQUIRED TO DELIVER A HARD-COPY OF THE PERMISSION NOTE TO THE HONORS CAROLINA OFFICE IN 225 GRAHAM MEMORIAL.

PHIL 362H.001 | Contemporary Ethical Theory

TR, 2:00 pm - 3:15 pm. Instructor(s): Sarah Stroud. Enrollment = 24.

This course will examine the leading styles of systematic ethical theory as they have been developed in the contemporary philosophical literature. We will begin with contemporary consequentialism, which holds that the right action in any given situation is the one with the best consequences. Deontological moral views, by contrast, maintain that actions are right or wrong simply because of their intrinsic features, simply because of the kinds of acts they are. Pluralist moral theories propose a plurality of moral duties or morally relevant considerations which must be weighed against each other in individual cases. Finally, virtue ethics comprises ethical theories which approach the central moral categories via the idea of a virtuous agent.

DESCRIPTION:

Time and the Medieval Cosmos will introduce first-year students to the basic motions of the solar system as viewed from the Earth and the mechanical and mathematical models used to reproduce them. The course will also immerse students in the world of medieval and early modern education, theology, and natural philosophy, challenging them to understand the historical conditions that shaped views of the cosmos in the premodern world. Last but not least, the class will raise broader questions about the relationship between faith and reason, along with the role of institutional authorities in determining the boundaries of acceptable knowledge.

Students may also register for this course under HIST 50.001.

DESCRIPTION:

This seminar is for students who are interested in how music is made, how sound is produced in instruments, and how those sounds have been used in music making from ancient times to the present day. Students will study the basics of physics and music: wave motion, resonance, the perception of sound, scales, harmony, and music theory. We will conduct four laboratory exercises (called etudes) in which students will work in small groups to investigate the acoustics of string, woodwind and brass instruments. Keyboards and percussion will also be considered, and students can pursue their areas of special interest in a research paper. The final project for each student will be a public performance of an original musical composition for an ensemble of instruments that the students have constructed themselves out of found objects.

Students may also register for this course under MUSC 51.001.

DESCRIPTION:

Mechatronics is a multidisciplinary synergy of STEM fields, specifically physics, engineering, electronics, and computer science. All students, regardless of their educational goals, will achieve critical introductory skills in numerical reasoning and analysis, model-building and prototyping, computer programming and electronics, and will demonstrate proficiency and knowledge about topics that increasingly impact society. The course focuses on four areas: Numeracy and Proportional Reasoning, Rapid Prototyping and Manufacturing, Computer Technology (Programming and Electronics), and Current and Future technologies (aka, shall we welcome our new mechatronic overlords : robotics, AI, and quantum computing). The course goals are to prepare students for academic success at UNC, to help science students be more capable scientists, and to help ALL students be stronger and better-informed citizens of the world.

An introduction to quantum computing. Basic math and quantum mechanics necessary to understand the operation of quantum bits. Quantum gates, circuits, and algorithms, including Shor's algorithm for factoring and Grover's search algorithm. Entanglement and error correction. Quantum encryption, annealing and simulation. Brief discussion of technologies. Some knowledge of basic linear algebra recommended but not required.

DESCRIPTION:

Higher education is undergoing rapid transformations that may dramatically change the undergraduate college experience. In this course, you will examine urgent questions facing American colleges and universities. For example, why is the cost of college rising and what implications does this shift have for who attends and graduates from college? How well is higher education preparing students for jobs of the future? How has new technology reshaped the college experience, both academically and socially? How should universities respond to student needs and desires? What role should athletics play in higher education? We'll explore these and other topics through class discussion, position papers, oral presentations and debates, and interactions with UNC faculty and staff. By introducing you to the history, institutions, and culture of higher education, this course also will help you transition into and make the most of your college experience.

PLCY 061H.001 | Policy Entrepreneurship and Public-Private Partnerships

TR, 12:30 pm - 1:45 pm. Instructor(s): Daniel Gitterman. Enrollment = 24.

This seminar will define a policy entrepreneur and examine strategies used by policy entrepreneurs to achieve policy change or innovation in the policy making process. This course also aims to explore ways that public, private, and non-profit sectors collaborate to address problems that cannot be solved by one sector alone. There is growing recognition that sustainable solutions to some of the most complex challenges confronting our communities can benefit from these collaborative or {intersector} approaches.

Daniel P. Gitterman is Thomas Willis Lambeth Distinguished Chair in Public Policy and Director of the Honors Carolina Burch Field Research Seminar in

PLCY 076H.001 | Global Health Policy

TR, 11:00 am - 12:15 pm. Instructor(s): Benjamin Meier. Enrollment = 24.

Global health policy impacts the health and well being of individuals and peoples throughout the world. Many determinants of health operate at a global level, and many national policies, social practices, and individual health behaviors are structured by global forces. Concern for the spread of infectious diseases, increasing rates of chronic diseases and the effectiveness of health systems to provide quality care are among the daunting challenges to health policy makers.

With profound social, political and economic changes rapidly challenging global health, the aim of this course in Global Health Policy is to provide students with a variety of opportunities to understand the epidemiologic trends in world health, the institutions of global health governance, and the effects of globalization on global and national health policy.

This course provides an introduction to the relationship between international relations, global health policy and public health outcomes. ## DESCRIPTION:

This seminar will examine the role of schools and other institutions play in determining life chances, which educational interventions work well for economically and academically disadvantaged students, and what to do when institutions cease to work well. Students will learn how to analyze complex educational public policy problems while exploring questions of effectiveness, inequality, resource management, and politics.

REGISTRATION PROCEDURES:

Beginning in mid-April 2019, incoming first-year (FY) students will fill out an academic interest survey, which allows students to share their top ten FYS preferences, as well as preferences for other courses with seats reserved for the FY pre-registration process. Beginning in early summer, FY students will be pre-registered in two fall 2019 classes based on their interest survey responses and availability of seats. In July 2019, FY students will then have the opportunity to self-enroll in the remaining FYS seats during their assigned course registration dates. On Wednesday, July 31, one day after the last FY

PLCY 101H.001 | Making American Public Policy

MWF, 10:10 am - 11:00 am. Instructor(s): William Goldsmith. Enrollment = 24.

This course provides a general overview of the role of history in public policy, the policy-making process, and the substance of major domestic and global public policy challenges. It exposes students to the conceptual and analytical perspectives necessary for understanding and playing a direct role in policy making. This course will illuminate policy and political challenges in areas such as tax policy, social policy, education policy, health policy, foreign policy, and homeland security. We will explore the inherent tensions that emerge between good {politics} and good {policy} in a number of these substantive policy areas. Honors students will pay particular attention to the role of politicians (elected officials) and experts (policy researchers) in the making of public policy. Students will work to develop their skills in effective oral and written communication, including making oral arguments, presenting research findings, and writing for policy audiences.

PLCY 210H.001 | Policy Innovation and Analysis

TR, 9:30 am - 10:45 am. Instructor(s): Christine Durrance. Enrollment = 24.

This course will introduce students to public policy as a discipline and the policy analysis process. We will review the core steps, theories, and tools of the policy process, provide practice applying these tools, and encourage the evaluation of effectiveness of different policy alternatives. The process involves defining a public problem and understanding stakeholders and their perspectives; describing public problems with quantitative data; understanding market failures and other rationales for government involvement; selecting criteria relevant for decision-making; constructing policy alternatives; evaluating the different alternatives against the stated policy criteria; and making and communicating a recommendation. This is a research-based and communication-intensive course, which requires the completion of a policy brief in several, iterative steps. The course incorporates current events and relevant case studies to motivate and explain the policy analysis process.

NOTE: WAIT LISTING FOR FALL 2019 HONORS COURSES HAS BEEN SUSPENDED. BEGINNING MONDAY, AUGUST 19, YOU MUST OBTAIN WRITTEN INSTRUCTOR PERMISSION FOR ANY HONORS COURSE YOU WISH TO JOIN. YOU ARE REQUIRED TO DELIVER A HARD-COPY OF THE PERMISSION NOTE TO THE HONORS CAROLINA OFFICE IN 225 GRAHAM MEMORIAL.

DESCRIPTION:

The face of the American worker is changing and the challenges American workers face are ever evolving. Both the media and public in general is becoming more aware of issues like income inequality, living wages, and the role of unions in the workplace. This seminar will explore the American worker from a legal, economic, and social justice perspective. Additionally, the legal framework Americans operate within (in respect to labor law) will be compared with international standards on labor rights. The seminar will also feature an analysis of the American worker through some classic film and fictional literature.

REGISTRATION PROCEDURES:

Beginning in mid-April 2019, incoming first-year (FY) students will fill out an academic interest survey, which allows students to share their top ten FYS preferences, as well as preferences for other courses with seats reserved for the FY pre-registration process. Beginning in early summer, FY students will

DESCRIPTION:

This seminar focuses on explaining and understanding social movements and the collective political behaviors that they promote (e.g. demonstrations, protests, violence, and eco-terrorism). Our theoretical focus will be interdisciplinary, drawing on research in political behavior, social psychology, sociology, political theory, and the law. We will discuss when and why collective action occurs, who participates, what forms it takes, and how governments respond. Substantively, we will study a variety of movements including: The Tea Party movement, Black Lives Matter, #MeToo movement, the Environmental movement, the Animal Rights movement, and the White Nationalist movement. We will use a variety of approaches and resources: class discussions, films, wiki writing, online discussions, novels, and texts. Grades will be based on class participation, a writing project, and several group wiki papers.

DESCRIPTION:

This course will present political institutions as levers of conflict management in ethnically plural, post-conflict national states. To highlight the issues that lie behind constitutional design attention will be focused on a province that was in turmoil within an established democracy (Northern Ireland), a democratizing state (South Africa), a North African state in tumult (Egypt) and post war institutional design (Afghanistan). These states will be analyzed in terms of their paths toward democracy, the nature of their internal conflict and the types of political institutions they have (or are) adopting. Key to the class will be the student's focus on their own case study of a democratizing state. The class will be briefed on the core 'building block' choices that go into a new constitution and the importance of rooting institutions in the distinct historical and socio-political characteristics of a nation. Through lectures, videos and discussions we shall investigate how nations can seek to transform violent conflict into democratic debate.

DESCRIPTION:

Are you interested in being a lawyer or public official? Do you know what it means to 'think like a lawyer'? Have you considered why people mostly honor the law? Where do you find 'the law'? How do judges decide difficult cases? This seminar will explore the notion of a rule of law, formal and customary law, legal analysis, judicial interpretation and the realities of the adversarial system and law practice. We will consider what makes law seem legitimate and how to assess whether it promotes liberty and justice. This seminar will challenge students to be reflective and critical about their own perspectives and to explore personal responsibility for promoting a rule of law. Students will be engaged in analytical thinking and expression through required participation in teacher-led dialogues based on assigned readings and with research and writing assignments. Reading materials include selections from court cases and other sources that provide an introduction to the notion of a rule of law, the sources of law that govern us and protect our individual rights, the nature of legal analysis, the different methods of judicial interpretation, and the realities of law practice and the adversarial system.

POLI 150H.001 | International Relations and World Politics

TR, 9:30 am - 10:45 am. Instructor(s): Mark Crescenzi. Enrollment = 22.

This course introduces you to world politics from a logical, social scientific perspective. The substantive goal is to understand why and how political actors in the international arena make the decisions. Why do nations fight? Why do they cooperate, economically and politically? How can we understand the mechanisms that encourage cooperation over conflict in world politics?

This course does not simply inform you of how others have studied problems in world politics. Rather, the intent is to demonstrate how theories of world politics can be constructed and applied, and, in turn, to have you engage in this process of application. There are several options of theoretical focus for such a course. In this course the basic perspective is rationalist, a powerful but imperfect set of assumptions about human behavior. As we learn about the mechanics of international relations, we will also examine the strengths and weaknesses of rational choice. The expectation is that you will master this approach even if you are critical of the core assumptions.

NOTE: WAIT LISTING FOR FALL 2019 HONORS COURSES HAS BEEN SUSPENDED. BEGINNING MONDAY, AUGUST 19, YOU MUST OBTAIN WRITTEN INSTRUCTOR PERMISSION FOR ANY HONORS COURSE YOU WISH TO JOIN. YOU ARE REQUIRED TO DELIVER A HARD-COPY OF THE PERMISSION NOTE TO THE HONORS CAROLINA OFFICE IN 225 GRAHAM MEMORIAL.

POLI 208H.001 | Political Parties

TR, 3:30 pm - 4:45 pm. Instructor(s): Marc Hetherington. Enrollment = 24.

It was only a couple decades ago that political scientists and pundits argued that political parties were all but lifeless. Democrats and Republicans in Congress voted together on a range of issues, obscuring the ideological differences between the parties. Perhaps as a consequence, Americans did not identify with parties strongly. Scholars and journalists interpreted these developments as signs of party in decline. This suggested trouble to many, given that parties have traditionally been the institutions most adept at organizing and channeling conflict in American politics. Talk of the problems associated with party polarization has replaced talk of the problems associated with party decline these days. Parties are resurgent on all levels. The national party organizations are in better financial shape than ever before. The parties in Congress pursue ideologically distinct policies, making it easy for ordinary Americans to distinguish between them. And, although the public still claims to dislike parties, ordinary Americans are identifying more closely with them than they have since the 1950s. In fact, the presidential elections of the 21st Century appear to feature the highest

POLI 238H.001 | Contemporary Latin American Politics

TR, 3:30 pm - 4:45 pm . Instructor(s): Evelyne Huber. Enrollment = 24.

This course provides an overview of major topics in the study of Latin American politics. It is aimed at students with a desire to understand how Latin American societies and governments are organized, what the major problems are that these societies are facing, and what accounts for different outcomes from the point of view of the welfare of citizens. We shall examine both common traits in the region's history, culture, and economic, political, and social structures, and important differences between countries in these dimensions. We shall gain an understanding of the diversity of national experiences and a somewhat deeper knowledge of a few select cases: Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Uruguay, and Costa Rica.

Evelyn Huber, Morehead Alumni Distinguished Professor in Political Science, works on problems of development, democratization, and welfare states in Latin America and Europe. Her most recent books, co-authored with John D. Stephens and published by the University of Chicago Press, are entitled Development and

POLI 490H.001 | Statistical Research in Criminal Justice

MW, 3:35 pm - 4:50 pm. Instructor(s): Frank Baumgartner. Enrollment = 24.

This course will focus on hands-on quantitative research projects conducted in close consultation with the instructor, either individually or in small groups. Topics will include statistical questions about the criminal justice system, with datasets and research questions provided by the instructor. Some projects will deal with the death penalty, updating and extending research previously conducted for the book, Deadly Justice: A Statistical Portrait of the Death Penalty (Oxford, 2018). Others will relate to a database made available from the NC Administrative Office of the Courts, consisting of millions of records of arrest throughout the state over the past five years. Others may relate to research on traffic stops, with an emphasis on racial and gender disparities in the outcomes of those routine citizen-police encounters. Students will gain hands-on experience in: a) data collection and management; b) data analysis; c) technical writing; d) oral and written communication; and e) speaking truth to power on controversial subjects of public policy.

NOTE: WAIT LISTING FOR FALL 2019 HONORS COURSES HAS BEEN SUSPENDED. BEGINNING MONDAY, AUGUST 19, YOU MUST OBTAIN WRITTEN INSTRUCTOR PERMISSION FOR ANY HONORS COURSE YOU WISH TO JOIN. YOU ARE REQUIRED TO DELIVER A HARD-COPY OF THE PERMISSION NOTE TO THE HONORS CAROLINA OFFICE IN 225 GRAHAM MEMORIAL.

POLI 891 (Special Topics: Behavioral Economics)

Rational agent theories assume that individuals are fully rational decision-makers; however, that is often not the case in the real world. Behavioral economics uses findings from laboratory and field experiments to advance existing models by identifying ways in which individuals are systematically irrational. This course gives an overview of key insights from behavioral science including but are not restricted to prospect theory, risk aversion, framing effects, other-regarding preferences such as altruism, spite, trust, and reciprocity.

Summary: This seminar will survey the literature in the field of American Political Development from the founding to contemporary times. We will cover the historical development of politics in the U.S. with a focus on historical institutionalism. Students will gain a deeper understanding of important developments in American political history and should be able to use those insights to gain a better understanding of contemporary politics in the U.S.

DESCRIPTION:

This course will introduce you to the recent research and debate regarding neural plasticity and the ability of the healthy adult brain to change. Exciting new research suggests that the ability of the adult brain to change goes well beyond simply acquiring new knowledge and memories. Incredible accounts of brain damaged patients recovering cognitive, perceptual and motor functions have opened new areas of research into the ability of the adult brain to change, and a host of new businesses have arisen purporting to be able to trigger, and maintain, desired changes in the brain. Goals of this course include gaining knowledge of a new area of research in the psychological and neural sciences, developing skills in going beyond general-audience media coverage to critically evaluate actual research reports (scientific journal articles), and presenting your own well-researched ideas in written and oral formats. We will begin with chapters from popular press books on the subject, and progress to scientific articles. There are no pre-requisites for this course, but most class sessions will include group discussions, so please always come prepared to share your opinions of the assigned readings.

In this project-based CURE course, students will work with a community partner to identify a clinical research question that will contribute to our understanding and treatment of psychological health and human behavior. Using an iterative method reflective of working in a clinical psychology research lab, students will collaborate with one another and community partners to develop hypotheses for the project, to prepare and analyze the data, to propose interpretations of the data, and to present their results.

Seat restriction periods: April 2nd-August 5th and August 13th-August 26th. Majority of seats restricted to PSYC majors, NSCI majors, Cognitive Science minors, and Neuroscience minors only during the noted times.

This course explores development from birth through childhood with a focus on the underlying brain networks that support sensory processing, cognition, language, and emotion. The class will consider the different neuroimaging techniques and behavioral assessments to chart both typical and atypical development.

Course will meet in the basement classroom in TOPO building at Columbia and Franklin.

PSYC 533H.001 | The General Linear Model in Psychology
 TR, 8:00 am - 9:15 am. Instructor(s): Dan Bauer. Enrollment = 24.
 Goals of the course: Evaluating hypotheses through the statistical analysis of empirical data is one of the cornerstones of modern science. In this course, we examine how the General Linear Model (GLM), including the multiple regression model, is used in psychological science. Goals of the course are for you to:

- Gain an understanding of how to specify GLMs that are both appropriate for your data and that provide direct tests of theoretically motivated hypotheses.
- Become competent in fitting GLMs within commonly used statistical software, such as SPSS.
- Become a thoughtful and critical consumer of psychological research using the GLM

NOTE: WAIT LISTING FOR FALL 2019 HONORS COURSES HAS BEEN SUSPENDED. BEGINNING MONDAY, AUGUST 19, YOU MUST OBTAIN WRITTEN INSTRUCTOR PERMISSION FOR ANY HONORS COURSE YOU WISH TO JOIN. YOU ARE REQUIRED TO DELIVER A HARD-COPY OF THE PERMISSION NOTE TO THE HONORS CAROLINA OFFICE IN 225 GRAHAM MEMORIAL.

TITLE: September 11: Origins, Consequences, and Where Do We Go from Here

GEN EDS: HS, CI

DESCRIPTION:

This first-year seminar will reflect upon the September 11 terrorist attacks in the United States, exploring how the terrorist attacks occurred and why the U.S. intelligence community and policymakers failed to anticipate and prevent them as well as the subsequent effects on the United States, the Middle East, and the world. The instructors, a former senior leader in the U.S. intelligence community and armed forces and a former intelligence analyst, will lead students in discussions and in-class exercises to encourage critical analysis of the implications of terrorism, particularly on United States national security. A variety of assignments will require students to assess the causes and results of American national security decisions and alternative decisions

PWAD 150H.001 | International Relations and World Politics

TR, 9:30 am - 10:45 am. Instructor(s): Mark Crescenzi. Enrollment = 2.

This course introduces you to world politics from a logical, social scientific perspective. The substantive goal is to understand why and how political actors in the international arena make the decisions. Why do nations fight? Why do they cooperate, economically and politically? How can we understand the mechanisms that encourage cooperation over conflict in world politics?

This course does not simply inform you of how others have studied problems in world politics. Rather, the intent is to demonstrate how theories of world politics can be constructed and applied, and, in turn, to have you engage in this process of application. There are several options of theoretical focus for such a course. In this course the basic perspective is rationalist, a powerful but imperfect set of assumptions about human behavior. As we learn about the mechanics of international relations, we will also examine the strengths and weaknesses of rational choice. The expectation is that you will master this approach even if you are critical of the core assumptions.

NOTE: WAIT LISTING FOR FALL 2019 HONORS COURSES HAS BEEN SUSPENDED. BEGINNING MONDAY, AUGUST 19, YOU MUST OBTAIN WRITTEN INSTRUCTOR PERMISSION FOR ANY HONORS COURSE YOU WISH TO JOIN. YOU ARE REQUIRED TO DELIVER A HARD-COPY OF THE PERMISSION NOTE TO THE HONORS CAROLINA OFFICE IN 225 GRAHAM MEMORIAL.

DESCRIPTION:

The Dead Sea Scrolls have been described as the most important archaeological discovery of the 20th century. The first scrolls were discovered in 1947, in a cave near the site of Qumran by the Dead Sea. Eventually the remains of over 900 scrolls were found in 11 caves around Qumran. The scrolls date to the time of Jesus and include the earliest preserved copies of the Hebrew Bible (Old Testament). They were deposited in the caves by members of a Jewish sect called the Essenes who lived at Qumran. In this seminar, students explore the meaning and significance of the Dead Sea Scrolls and learn about broader issues such as how canons of sacred scripture developed among Jews and Christians through classroom discussions, thought papers, and creative assignments.

REGISTRATION PROCEDURES:

Beginning in mid-April 2019, incoming first-year (FY) students will fill out an academic interest survey, which allows students to share their top ten FYS preferences, as well as preferences for other courses with seats reserved for the FY pre-registration process. ## DESCRIPTION:

This course is an introduction to Islam, focusing on religious thought and practice in both their historical and contemporary dimensions. The course responds critically to the dynamics of media and public representations of Islam and Muslims in the context of the United States, thus re-introducing students to Muslim discourses and practices through historical and thematic approaches, primary and secondary sources. Topics include the beliefs and practices of Muslims, the Prophet Muhammad, the Qur'an, Islamic Law, Sufism, Shi'ism, as well as continuous attention to gender norms and dynamics.

REGISTRATION PROCEDURES:

Beginning in mid-April 2019, incoming first-year (FY) students will fill out an academic interest survey, which allows students to share their top ten FYS preferences, as well as preferences for other courses with seats reserved for the FY pre-registration process. Beginning in early summer, FY students will be pre-registered in two fall 2019 classes based on their interest survey responses and availability of seats. In July 2019, FY students will then have the

DESCRIPTION:

Light has figured centrally in human explanations and manipulations of the natural world: from creation narratives, to the Copernican Revolution, to the theory of relativity, to harvesting energy from sunlight, to shaping light inside phones and screens for the capture and display of images. The goal of this course is to bring students into an intellectual encounter with light, one that will provide a history of human understandings of light, experimental encounters with light in the laboratory, and orientations to theoretical paradigms that have resulted from the human manipulation of light. At its most broad, the course aims to introduce first year students to knowledge and matter-energy as things that we study, handle, and transform.

RELI 420H.001 | Post-Holocaust Ethics and Theology

M, 3:35 pm - 6:25 pm . Instructor(s): Andrea Dara Cooper. Enrollment = 20.

This course examines the challenges posed to ethics and theology by the Holocaust. We will consider the collapse of traditional ethical approaches from a global and comparative context following the extermination of Jews in Europe during World War II. Philosophical and theological issues to be addressed include the problem of evil, divine omnipotence, theodicy, human animality, representation, and an ethics of memory.

CROSSLISTD WITH JWST 420H.

Dr. Andrea Dara Cooper is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Religious Studies and the Leonard and Tobee Kaplan Fellow in Modern Jewish Thought and Culture at UNC. Dr. Cooper works at the intersection of Jewish thought, contemporary philosophy, cultural theory, and gender studies. At UNC she teaches NOTE: WAIT LISTING FOR FALL 2019 HONORS COURSES HAS BEEN SUSPENDED. BEGINNING MONDAY, AUGUST 19, YOU MUST OBTAIN WRITTEN INSTRUCTOR PERMISSION FOR ANY HONORS COURSE YOU WISH TO JOIN. YOU ARE REQUIRED TO DELIVER A HARD-COPY OF THE PERMISSION NOTE TO THE HONORS CAROLINA OFFICE IN 225 GRAHAM MEMORIAL.

TITLE: World Indigenous Literatures
GEN EDS: LA, GL
DESCRIPTION: How many Indigenous or Native or Aboriginal Authors do you know of? Who have you read? What do these authors' works tell us about the origins of the world and humanity? What do their literary and artistic works tell us about our relationship to the environment, society and each other? The goal of this class is for students to become familiar with literatures that convey Indigenous/Native/ Aboriginal expressions, perspectives, and worldviews. Students will be introduced to various literary genres such as: poetry, essay, and novel. In addition to these more traditional forms of literature, other cultural expressions such as textile, painting, cinema, storytelling, song, and other oratory pieces will be presented as texts open for critical analysis and

SPAN 255H.001 | Conversation I

MWF, 1:25 pm - 2:15 pm. Instructor(s): Abel Muñoz-Hermoso. Enrollment = 11.

Spanish 255 Honors is a fifth-semester Spanish Conversation that will take students of Intermediate Spanish to a higher level of communicative competence in the language through the use of authentic input and the study of linguistic features necessary to understand and make oneself understood in a wide variety of real-life situations. The class works with a Course Correspondent abroad, one of our students in the UNC Seville program, who will be bringing highlights of that experience into our class in Chapel Hill. Spanish 255 Honors is designed to prepare non-native students for advanced study in Spanish, and is particularly recommend for those planning to study abroad.

REGISTRATION LIMITED TO MEMBERS OF HONORS CAROLINA; OUTSTANDING PERFORMANCE IN SPAN 204 OR EQUIVALENT IS REQUIRED.

NOTE: WAIT LISTING FOR FALL 2019 HONORS COURSES HAS BEEN SUSPENDED. BEGINNING MONDAY, AUGUST 19, YOU MUST OBTAIN WRITTEN INSTRUCTOR PERMISSION FOR ANY HONORS COURSE YOU WISH TO JOIN. YOU ARE REQUIRED TO DELIVER A HARD-COPY OF THE PERMISSION NOTE TO THE HONORS CAROLINA OFFICE IN 225 GRAHAM MEMORIAL.

SOCI 057H.001 | Rationalization and the Changing Nature of Social Life in 21st-Century America

TR, 3:30 pm - 4:45 pm. Instructor(s): Howard Aldrich. Enrollment = 24.

Today, fast food restaurants have become a model for everyday life. Some scholars have even talked about the "McDonaldization" of the nation and the world. By that, scholars mean a drive toward greater efficiency, predictability, calculability, and control by non-human technologies in modern organizations. This drive has shaped many features of American life, including health care, law, and education. Such forces have even affected personal relationships. Sociologists have a term for this process: "rationalization." In this course, we will explore that social process through a process called "active learning": field trips, making things in a makerspace, presentations by visitors, videos, classroom simulations, and other activities. You will be assessed based on your monthly contributions to blog posts, class participation, four short (two page) papers, a major research project culminating in a term paper (15-20 pages), and a group presentation.

NOTE: WAIT LISTING FOR FALL 2019 HONORS COURSES HAS BEEN SUSPENDED. BEGINNING MONDAY, AUGUST 19, YOU MUST OBTAIN WRITTEN INSTRUCTOR PERMISSION FOR ANY HONORS COURSE YOU WISH TO JOIN. YOU ARE REQUIRED TO DELIVER A HARD-COPY OF THE PERMISSION NOTE TO THE HONORS CAROLINA OFFICE IN 225 GRAHAM MEMORIAL.

DESCRIPTION:

This seminar, which presents a comparative and multidisciplinary perspective on how globalization affects labor markets and inequality, will consist of two parts. First, we will discuss basic sociological and economic models of work and globalization and then students will apply these models to three case studies: 1) sweatshops and the question of international labor standards, 2) industrialization and development in China and Indonesia and 3) immigration and economic integration between the U.S. and Mexico. Students will prepare research papers on one of the three case studies. Course readings will be supplemented by the teacher's current research on two questions: 1) What are conditions actually like for workers in Nike plants in Indonesia? (Interviews and a photo-narrative) and 2) How does the labor market work for undocumented Mexican workers? (Interviews from Carrboro, NC, part of Mouw's personal research project.)

DESCRIPTION:

The 1954 Brown v. Board of Education of Topeka case centered on one of the most significant and controversial issues in American public education: equality of educational opportunity. Now more than 60 years after this historic Supreme Court decision, this seminar will use a sociological lens to examine in depth the social conditions that precipitated the case, other relevant court decisions, the changing definitions of race and the educational landscape over the past 6 decades. Topics include de jure and de facto segregation, busing, between-school segregation, tracking and ability grouping, the black-white achievement gap and residential segregation. Students will read historical and contemporary accounts and research reports on the move and progress toward equality of educational opportunity, view films related to the topic, conduct original research exploring young adults' educational experiences, perspectives on equality of educational opportunity, and hopes for their future children. Students will prepare an oral presentation and a research paper.

This course will meet at SAMSI. The course on deep learning will start with a review of standard neural networks, and then progress to modern deep learning, including convolutional neural networks, recursive neural networks, generative adversarial networks, and various kinds of autoencoders. We shall discuss training strategies, architecture search, regularization and quantization.

DESCRIPTION:

Our day to day lives are filled with selfies and social media. This course asks you to re-examine these images from a feminist perspective asking what systems of power they are reinforcing. Students will dig deep to make self-portraits that reflect the multiple and changing aspects of their identity.

This seminar uses photography and its modalities of role-playing, performance, and documentation to understand the construction of identity and the changing roles that we take on in society. We will look at historical and contemporary photographers who use assumed identities to create their own realities and challenge society's stereotypes. Through a series of photographic self-portraits and performative experiences we will query our own identities and how they have been constructed. No specific camera equipment required. We will use our smart phones for this course.

WGST 240H.001 | Women in Greek Art and Literature

TR, 3:30 pm - 4:45 pm; Recitation: W, 3:35 pm - 4:25 pm. Instructor(s): Sharon James. Enrollment = 10.

In this class, we will learn about the life of women in ancient Greece, beginning with this question: what do we mean when we say {women in ancient Greece}? Since Greek cultural values and class structures make the category {woman} very complex, it will take us all semester to answer this question. We will focus on the treatment, both legal and social, of women in antiquity, by examining the visual depictions of women and women's lives as well as the literary evidence. We will also look at the gap between ideology and reality, asking "did Greek men really hate women?" We will cover about 900 years of history in this course.

Throughout the term we will study theories, laws, and social practices applying to women, looking particularly at: concepts of woman; differing gender ideologies for women in the different regions of Greece (Sparta, Gortyn, Athens) and in different social classes; occupations for women; the involvement of NOTE: WAIT LISTING FOR FALL 2019 HONORS COURSES HAS BEEN SUSPENDED. BEGINNING MONDAY, AUGUST 19, YOU MUST OBTAIN WRITTEN INSTRUCTOR PERMISSION FOR ANY HONORS COURSE YOU WISH TO JOIN. YOU ARE REQUIRED TO DELIVER A HARD-COPY OF THE PERMISSION NOTE TO THE HONORS CAROLINA OFFICE IN 225 GRAHAM MEMORIAL.

This course provides essential tools that anybody interested in business should know. We will analyze theory and practice of the major financial decisions made by corporations. The goal of the class is to teach you 1) how to value firms and project opportunities using methods drawn from the theory of corporate finance 2) to develop an appreciation of how financing decisions impact project and firm value and 3) how to develop effective ways to visualize and communicate spreadsheet analyses. By definition, the course is designed to be {hands-on}.

Pre-req: BUSI 408 Corporate Finance.

In addition, a basic understanding of Excel is essential to the overall learning experience.

This course, which builds on the foundational skills of analyzing and forecasting parts of a business, teaches students how to weave their forecasts into coherent spreadsheet-based pro-forma financials. The course starts from conceptual examples that illustrate the key intuition and explains linkages between the 3 core financial statements (IS/BS/CF). It will then build on these examples to forecast the financial statements of real companies. The main goal of this course is to illustrate how a practitioner would analyze a leveraged buyout. Students will construct their own LBO model in Excel and, by the end of the course, should feel comfortable assessing a company and determining if it is a viable LBO candidate.

To find a fulfilling career path, stand out to recruiters, and get high-impact assignments, you need a personal brand and a strategy for building professional relationships. Personal branding is an opportunity for individuals to purposefully build a coherent message about themselves and their expertise in order to connect with other professionals. In this course, students will develop authentic personal brands; learn how to communicate their brands in service of building professional relationships; and, create sustainable plans for managing and enjoying the relationships they build. By the end of the course, students should possess a growing list of promising professional contacts and feel confident when discussing themselves and their accomplishments with others.

*Application and Permission Required for This Course (See Below)*

Consulting Skills and Frameworks is an intensive skill-based course dedicated to teaching key business and consulting skills of teamwork, analysis and presentations. While designed particularly for students interested in consulting, any students are welcome. Students who are interested in applying will need to submit an application to BUSI554H@kenan-flagler.unc.edu by March 24th. The application should include a brief email description of the reason for interest in the course and a summary of the skills the student brings to the class. Students will be notified by April 1 and enrolled in the course by the Undergraduate Business Program if accepted. Note that there are limited seats in the course. *Note: This course is NOT restricted to Honors students, but Honors students may use the course towards their yearly requirements.

This course is designed to complement the technical and diagnostic skills learned in the other courses at KFBS. A basic premise is that the manager needs analytic skills as well as interpersonal skills to effectively manage groups. The course will allow students the opportunity to develop these skills experientially and to understand team behavior in useful analytical frameworks.

Consulting Skills and Frameworks is an intensive skill-based course dedicated to teaching key business and consulting skills of teamwork, analysis and presentations. While designed particularly for students interested in consulting, any students are welcome. Students who are interested in applying will need to submit an application to Dr. Paul Friga (pnf@unc.edu) and his Assistant, Erin Mitchell, erin_mitchell@kenan-flagler.unc.edu by October 15. Non-SILS students are allowed to register for INLS 151, 201 and 161. However, seats are prioritized according to year (freshman, sophomore, and junior). If you receive a `reserve capacity not met; error message for an open course (green dot), it means that all seats reserved for your year are currently filled. You must add yourself to the waitlist in Connect Carolina, as we will not be keeping an internal waitlist. We will enroll from the waitlist as seats become available. Seniors are not allowed to enroll in these 3 courses.

*Undergraduates can only be on one waitlist at a time and 17 hours is the max during early registration.

**We will begin to fill available seats from the waitlist in early August. If you are not waitlisted, you will not be allowed to enroll.

Non- SILS students are not allowed to register for all other INLS courses as they are restricted to INLS major, minors and graduate students during early registration. NON-SILS students will need to add yourself to the waitlist in Connect Carolina for the course you are interested in, as we will not be keeping an internal waitlist. We will enroll from the waitlist as seats become available.

*Undergraduates can only be on one waitlist at a time and 17 hours is the max during early registration.

DESCRIPTION:

What does it mean to be an educated person? What function do schools serve? This seminar builds on the experiences of schooling that students bring to the university. In an innovative update to the pedagogy of this popular First Year Seminar, it will now feature design thinking and use of makerspaces as a way for students to actualize their ideas and learning about how schooling can be updated and revised to better meet the aims of real education in the Twenty-first Century and beyond. The seminar includes readings, speakers and experiences as stimuli for them to engineer new paradigms, approaches, structures and tools for education of the future. Students are challenged to re-consider and de-construct what they know about education and schools as a result of those experiences and then re-conceptualize, redesign and create their new vision for schooling as educative in new ways. The seminar considers traditional schooling along with non-traditional and international approaches to educating youngsters. There are no pre-requisites for this class. Students' first-hand knowledge and experiences combined with a critical perspective will encourage innovative thinking about ways and places of learning with the aim of generating proposals for new or reformed schools and new forms of public education for the future through collaboration, making and design thinking.

TITLE: Polarized Politics, Fake News and Preparing for Election 2020. This class will meet in CA 128 (Halls of Fame).
GEN EDS: CI
DESCRIPTION:
This course offers first year students an opportunity to explore American public life through the lens of professional journalism. Students will read explanatory journalism, examine what makes information credible or not. By engaging in group discussions and writing their own analyses, they will deepen their understanding of how government and politics play out in states and communities in today's often-fractious United States. In addition to learning more about journalism and democracy, the course seeks to instill in students a sense of idealism and engaged citizenship.

TITLE: Use, Misuse, and Addiction to Drugs in the 21st Century

GEN EDS: SS

DESCRIPTION:

The medical and societal consequences of opioid and other drug use have reached epidemic proportions in the United States. Opioid overdose is now the leading cause of accidental death in the country, and the demographics and characteristics of the epidemic are constantly evolving. The purpose of this first-year student seminar is to understand the culture and physiological effects of beneficial and non-beneficial opioid use that includes pain management, overdose prevention, opioid use disorder, opioid overdose, diversion, legal consequences, harm reduction and treatment. Increased focus will include the rapidly evolving misuse, addiction and fatalities to and from cocaine and methamphetamines. Activities will include pre-class reading and weekly

This is an introductory course in probability and statistical inference designed for the background and needs of BSPH Biostatistics students. Topics include survey sampling, descriptive statistics, design of experiments, correlation, probability, confidence intervals, tests of hypotheses, sets of 2-way tables, chi-square distribution, power, ANOVA, non-parametric tests, and linear regression. A small class size will allow opportunity for more in-depth treatment of biostatistics topics.

In addition to traditional introductory statistical concepts, students explore current controversies, ethical questions, and common errors in the medical literature through a variety of readings and a project.

Upon completion, students will have an understanding of many of the most important introductory areas in inferential statistics. Students will be able to produce straight-forward statistical graphs and conduct commonly used analyses using SAS software. Emphasis will be placed on understanding the underlying mathematical concepts in biostatistics, developing SAS programming skills and interpreting results clearly for a non-statistical audience in writing.

This graduate-level course is also open to undergrads. The course is available for 2 or 3 credit hours and is held off-site at the NC Biotechnology Center

5:00 - 7:00 pm. The course includes students from diverse disciplines in Duke, UNC and NCSU. Students taking the course for 3 credits are required to enroll in the 1 hour discussion session on Thursday mornings (8:00 - 9:00 am) on UNC campus. All students can attend a maximum of 50% selected Tuesday evening lectures via video conferencing from UNC campus. Under special circumstances and with permission, students may take the class for 1 credit with reduced assignments.

Attendance at each seminar is mandatory for all students enrolled. It is expected that students will actively participate by asking questions of the speaker. This one credit course is meant to give students practice speaking in front of an audience and to explore topics of their own choosing in detail. Students will research topics and organize presentations for faculty and other students. The topics may be any aspect of air quality and atmospheric sciences and must be approved by the instructor in advance. To help students improve as speakers, each student will receive feedback from the fellow students and the instructor. After your seminar, arrange a time to meet with me to discuss your performance.
